

NBA Quantum Group

January 12th 2012

The Quantum Group has vacancies for high achievers keen to apply their knowledge and experience to ever changing tasks. Quantum provides contractual, planning and commercial support to its construction clients at all stages of their projects. Continued expansion of operations in the UK, Europe, South Africa and the Middle East has created the following vacancies.

Lead Consultants

Required to work independently with the ability to give expert opinion or as the leader of a team assigned to a project. Must have at least 15 years PQE, and possess an ability to manage the work of others. The right candidates must have had significant claims / dispute management experience.

Senior Commercial/Contractual Consultants

Consultants to work with limited supervision on a variety of construction projects and needs to have experience of producing claims / counterclaims. Preferably 10 years PQE and must have acquired experience and enthusiasm for unravelling problems, evaluating their effect and case presentation.

Planning/Senior Planning Consultants

Experience required in prospective and forensic planning tasks including retrospective delay analysis. Familiarity with the leading software packages is essential and a thorough understanding of planning and delay analysis principles is necessary.

Applications are sought from professionally qualified Civil Engineers or Quantity Surveyors with relevant experience.

Each position requires specialist knowledge, passion and an advanced ability to communicate both orally and in writing.

Quantum provides a specialist high level of services to our Clients and only the highest calibre of staff need apply for these positions where the rewards and incentives are commensurate with the staff at the peak of their career looking for the next challenge.

For all enquires and to apply applicants should contact recruitment@quantuminternational.tv